DETAILED ACTION

The examiner acknowledges the amendment filed November 25, 2005 and July 7, 2006.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US

Patent Number 5,692,500 A.

In regards to Claim 1, and with respect to claims 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18. An apparatus for assessing psychological state, the apparatus comprising, a measurement device, the measurement device comprising a scale defining a range of values and a re-positionable indicator to mark a position on said scale (figure 2).

However, Gaston-Johansson discloses the claimed invention except for the specific arrangement and/or content of indicia (printed matter) set forth in the claim(s). In the claims set forth by the applicant the print matter is specific to the "manual" and those claims which directly refer to the manual or the manual's use, claims 9, 10, 11, and 12.

a manual, the manual comprising instructions for the use of the device and the manual further comprising a written description of a series of events or experiences each of which is assigned a value associated with one or more of said events or experiences.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the manual since it would only depend on the intended use of the assembly and the desired information to be displayed. Further, it has been held that when the claimed printed matter is not functionally related to the substrate it will not distinguish the invention from the prior art in terms of patentability. In re Gulack, 217 USPQ 401, (CAFC 1983). The fact that the content of the printed matter placed on the substrate may render the device more convenient by providing an individual with a specific type of manual does not alter the functional relationship. Mere support by the substrate for the printed matter is not the kind of functional relationship necessary for patentability. Thus, there is no novel and unobvious functional relationship between the printed matter e.g. the manual and the substrate e.g. the measurement device which is required for patentability.

In regards to Claims 2-8, see previous office action for the details of the rejection.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 13-18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed November 25, 2005 and July 7, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The Applicant asserts that the invention has a cumulative assessment and the prior art does not. However the Applicant has not claimed a cumulative assessment in any of the claims. Therefore the Applicant's assertion lacks merit.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
